NEWS RELEASE: Top labour and employment law firm will expand to Atlantic Canada

(Halifax, NS, December 21, 2016) Mathews Dinsdale, one of Canada's top labour and employment law firms, is expanding to Atlantic Canada and opening its new Halifax office in early 2017. Prominent Halifax labour and employment lawyer, Tara Erskine, QC, CPHR will be joining the firm as a Partner and will lead operations when the new office opens.

For 60 years, Mathews Dinsdale has been assisting employers with legal issues arising from the workplace. With six offices in cities across Canada, including Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto, and, now, Halifax, Mathews Dinsdale is uniquely positioned to assist employers across the country.

"Our partners are delighted that Tara will be leading our Atlantic Canada operations in Halifax," says Mark Contini, Managing Partner of Mathews Dinsdale. "We are excited to be opening our office in Nova Scotia and to further enhance the delivery of exceptional labour and employment law services from coast-to-coast. We are equally excited to have a lawyer of Tara's experience and reputation to take the lead for the firm in Halifax."

About Tara Erskine

Tara Erskine, QC, CPHR is a labour and employment lawyer who provides proactive strategic advice to employers. Based in Halifax, her practice extends nation-wide where she works as a partner with human resource professionals and in-house counsel of Canada's leading employers in dealing with employee issues.
